On Wednesday, April 22, Morgan Stanley's Vector Group hosted General Michael Hayden, former head of the CIA & NSA for a presentation about cyber security at our corporate headquarters.

General Hayden, currently a principal at the Chertoff Group, spoke to a standing room only crowd about the issues of security in cyberspace. General Hayden's tenure in the intelligence agencies saw the rise of this type of concern to the highest levels. His review gave listeners a glimpse of the complexity of the problems facing businesses and governments alike in what is apparently an ever-increasing issue of concern.

In a Q&A session after the presentation, David Sherrill reviewed questions of great concern with the General. The event was extremely informative.
